LITERARY NOTES.

A correspondent asks THE TRIBUNE in an enthusi-astic note who "Margaret Veley" is. Margaret Veley is a very clever English woman and the author of two striking novels, "For Percival" and "Damocles." Both have been republished here.

Mr. Justin H. McCarthy is about to publish a volume under the title of "Serapion and Other Poems."

The late Sidney Lanier's lectures on the English novel are to be brought out in book form by Charles Scribner's Sons. The same firm will soon publish Dr. Ritter's book on "Music in England and America," and the revised and enlarged edition of Dr. S. W. Williams's "Middle Kingdom." "Sherwood Bonner," otherwise Mrs. Kate Mc-Dowell, will shortly bring out a book of "Dialect Tales," collected from the Harper periodicals. They are among the most characteristic and humorous of recent Southern sketches.

The Rev. Alfred Ainger's edition of the Essays of Eha will shortly come from the press of Macmillan ington Irving as one who, within the lines which he SIX LECTURES ON ASTRONOMY. set himself and which he never overpassed, was perhaps the most perfect humorist that ever wrote. "The charm of numor," says Mr. Shorthouse, "consists not merely in laughter, or even in joy, but in the stirring of those sympathies and associations which exist invariably in the race, for we inherit a world-life and a religion, the earth's springs of whose realities lie, perchance, too deep for laughter, but not, Heaven be thanked, too deep for tears."

The latest volumes in the Riverside edition of Aawthorne are those containing "The Marble Faun" and (bound together) "The Scariet Letter" and "The Blithedale Romance." The etching in the former volume of Miriam and Donatello is an ampleasantly affected and exaggerated piece of Mr. Walter Besant's novels cannot any longer be said to be without a purpose. He has evidently taken up with deliberation divers humanitarian designs, and his new work, "All in a Garden Fair," shows not only the reflection of a philosophic observer of life and the touch of an artist but also the sympathy of a generous nature.

Wong Ching Foo, the editor of The Chinese-American, is about to begin the translation into English of "The Fan Yong; or the Royal Slave," the most popular of Chinese historical novels. The romance was written 2,200 years ago by Kong Ming. Kong Ming's style as an author is said to resemble that of Victor Hugo.

HOPE DEFERRED AT THE LENOX LIBRARY.

To the Editor of The Tribune,

Sin: Some one has made the suggestion that if the Czar of all the Russias wanted a per/ectly retired, safe, impregnable place in which to be crowned. he should choose the Lenox Library. Some of us feel that the plan was not amiss, in so far as that the place is safe and inaccessible. We have waited long, and it would seem in vain, for the fulfilment of the promise of this Liorary, for New-York City. The average Guration of human life is increasing, and itmay be that the younger portion of those now on the stage may be permitted, before they die, to behold, like Moses, this Promised Land. But to those who are older, hope falls. Still I desire to k now-and if it were possible, it would be a gratification to read—that portion of Mr. Lenox's will which gives and bequeathes the Library to Mr.—I beg pardon -to the city of New-York. It would save much auxiety and some traveiling, and the mortification of rebuffs, to know just what we may depend upon, and what are our rights, if we have any. Yours, XXXIX.

THE LATE JOHN RICHARD GREEN.

AUTHOR OF THE "HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH PEOPLE."

PEOPLE."

From The London Times.

A small, sickly and precocious boy, he seems to have passed most of his childhood alone with his books, avoiding all games and speeding the play hours in company with Gibson and Home, thus forming and developing his extraordinary power of rapid and omnivorous reading. At fitteen he had learned as much as the school cound teach him, and he passed the next three years with private tuors. It was by the advice of one of these that he entered for a scholarship at Jesus 701-lege—one of the two or three scholarships at that 'me open to Englishmen at the Welsh College. It was an unfortunate step, for Green never fett at home there; and having early taken a dislike to the college having the part of the college had made in the legitle and the tributed to The Oxford thronicle a remarkable series of papers on "Oxford in the Enghtsenth Century," which were atterward reprinted. Immoure as they are, they show signs of the same qualities for which the writer was afferward celebrated—the power of sciling the essential features of a past epoch and presenting it for a vividity pictorial way. It seems, indeed, to have been through the hastorical studies which had led to his writing tuese papers that he was brought across the only man in Oxford who at that early date appreciated him—Arthur stanley, then Professor of Ecclesiated him—Arthur stanley, then Professor of the British fluxeum. traordinary knowledge which his book reveals, both of primitive English institutions and to a still greater extent, of the peysical features of the country. His descriptions of the forests and the roads, of primeval London and of the most ancient seats of English industry, are wonderful pictures, as unimpeachable as they are original. And this book, as we said, was written when he was in almost the last stage of weakness. Nor did his activity stop here, for throughout last spring and summer he was engaged on a continuation, on a volume which should carry on the story, on the same lines, down to the Norman invasion; and this volume he left, we believe, almost ready for publication.

His books, however, give a very imperfect picture of Mr. Green. His extraordinary brilliancy came out even more strikingly in his conversation, which, when disease gave him any respite, never ceased to charm his friends, while the spectacle of his patience and courage under suffering was one that it did one good to witness. His knowledge seemed to have almost no limits; his versatility and readiness were unexampled; and his interest in everything—in politics, in literature, and in all the questions of the "sy—was unflagging. The large number of friends, many of them emiment in letters or public affairs, who used to come in the summer months to his house in Kensington-square will long miss the fragile form, the keen face, the quick sympathy that welcomed them there.

MINES AND MINING.

SUNDAY, March 18-P. M. The mining stock markets last week presents no features that call for extended comment. Dulness and depression marked the transactions which prinand depression marked the transactions which principally were in low price shares of little or no value. Yesterday's markets were especially weak: Sierra Grande declined to 250@255, Robinson to 72 @73 cents, and Sonora Consolidated to 44 cents; and Lacrosse, despite the good things said of it, fell 3 cents to 15 cents.

The attention of the stockholders of the Gold Stripe Mining Company, of California, is directed to an advertisement in another column.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

San Francisco, March 18.—With the exception of Norcress, the management of which was recently taken from the Benanza firm, the market for Comstock shares closed duit and weak. The changes in outside stocks have been unimportant.

Grand Prize has been assessed 25 cents per share, and Eureka Consolidated $1 per share.

and Eureka Consolidated $1 per share.

Bullion valued at $35,000 was received in New-York on Saturday from the mines, making a total for the week of $2.8,450 90.

The total sales of mining stocks in New-York the past week are officially reported by the two exchanges at 429,390 shares.

Father de Smet superintendent's report for the week ending March 18, shows: Ore extracted from first level, 800 tons; second level, 700 tons; third level, 875 tons. Ore milled, 1,925 tons. North-end tunnel in 839 feet; third level header in 153½ feet; tramway level rise up 24 feet. Golden Gate header running north advanced 19 feet.

THE PETROLEUM MARKET.

NEW-YORK, March 18. Moved by the purchases of the "bears' to cover "short" contracts, the petroleum speculation has week passed easily, although excitedly, into the hands of the operators for a rise. There were nimest as large dealings at the Petroleum Exchanges as there were in the previous week. After the first effects of the closing out of a heavy "short" laterest, the markets responded in fluctuations to the influence of light money, many realizations of profits by the "buils" and the naturally unfavorable influence of the new Sperbegan in earnest. The fluctuations to day are without significance. The grain markets are taking care of themselves and will continue to until the result of the shifting of this week is apparent. Wheat closed $4.21 cent below the price last night, and corn $4.25 of a cent lower. May wheat sold as low as $1.025 and closed at $1.105 May corn as low as 50 cents and closed at $1.105 May corn as low as 50 cents and closed at $0.00 cents. The sellers of grain at those low prices were the traders who were buyers at $1.17. The prominent operators, even those with "bearish" prediffections, were not sellers. The best prophets of the market telegraph that corn and wheat look cheap to them. While the prevision options have declined in the last three days because there was such a panicky feeling about the grain pits, their position has not really changed. Armour & Co. are refusing to make any concessions on cash property, and this is not a bad sign. It is prenty certain that whatever amount of lard McGeoch has bought for future deflivery the cash lard is really in the possession of Armour. Kereaus, Armour's partner in the commission business, is advising John Baton & Co., of Boston, to get his customers on the "built side of lard. The Wall Street men who trade through the Honore Brothers have certainly sold out their short ribs, but there is good reason to believe that the very men, or at least some of them, who have given orders to Honore to sell, have telegraphed to Lindblom & Co. to buy. A very good authority persists that George Eldredge & Co. are still loaded up with short ribs, but the majority of prevision men declare that they see no evidence of his carrying a load. The price of flour here has a little increased of late, which shows that the mills of the Nortuwest have started up again since the drop in the price of wheat.
